Rogers' website highlighted the following campaign themes:[11]

Education

- Excerpt: "We need to lead beyond just test scores to provide schools where the whole child can flourish. A strong, well-rounded education for our children is the foundation for our economic and civil rights to ensure that Religious, Behavioral, and Cognitive contributions to education is protected."

Environment

- Excerpt: "Left Right for strong enforcement of the laws that protect our environment and advocate for policies that help lead to development of the alternative energy sector and the creation of green jobs."

Transportation

- Excerpt: "I believe we must begin to supplement our state's transportation challenges, which must include strong, term revenue solutions for the MBTA. I will work tirelessly to bring all relevant stakeholders to the table in order to develop a state-wide solution for transportation and infrastructure issues."

Healthcare

- Excerpt: "I will make controlling healthcare costs a top priority. One possible idea is to move away from a traditional fee-for-service model to a system where "pay-for-performance" or "bundled payments" system" where healthcare providers are not paid based on each individual test or procedure, but a flat fee based on the type of condition being treated."

Campaign donors

Scorecards

A scorecard evaluates a legislator's voting record. Its purpose is to inform voters about the legislator's political positions. Because scorecards are issue-specific, they are useful for voters who want to know a legislator's position on a particular issue. Interest groups or advocacy groups create and rate scorecards. Rating a legislator's voting record on one issue while a rival scorecard rates the same legislator's voting record on another issue may evaluate the voting record in its entirety.

Ballotpedia's scorecards include a selection of scorecards from all of published scorecards. Scorecards rate a legislator's voting record on issues that are of interest to a specific group. Ballotpedia's goal is to provide a comprehensive list of available scorecards regardless of ideology or rankings.
