The former members of the opposition who were bought by the Chavista dictatorship are known as scorpions. Bernabé Gutiérrez is one of the most prominent due to his predatory attitude, and not only in politics.

José Bernabé Gutiérrez Parra was born in Caicara del Orinoco, Bolívar state, on December 21, 1952. He is currently a deputy of the Írrita AN, elected by list vote in the questioned elections of December 6, 2020. He is also president of the board of directors of Democratic Action (AD), imposed by the Constitutional Chamber of the TSJ, with absolute attachment to the Nicolás Maduro regime, on June 15, 2020.

Gutiérrez was governor of Amazonas in three consecutive terms: 1995-1998, 1998-2000 and 2000-2001 backed by the Acción Democrática party. In 2001 he lost to Liborio Guarulla of the PPT, when the elections were repeated after he was challenged. In addition, he served as the national organization secretary of AD.

According to a note that appeared on elestimulo.com , in June 2020, a young Political Science student at the Central University of Venezuela denounced the abuses committed by Bernabé Gutiérrez since she was a minor.

María Fernanda Villalobos reported that her membership in Acción Democrática began in mid-2018, when she was still a minor. A short time later, she began to receive messages with very personal proposals from Gutiérrez, which made her feel uncomfortable and of which she presented evidence through WhatsApp screenshots.

She recounted that during one of the national tours of the party, in which the scorpion Gutiérrez was also supposed to travel, a room was not reserved for her at the hotel because he had said that "he was going to sleep with her."

Mafer assured that she remained silent because she received warnings that she should remain silent if she did not want something to happen to her: "After two years of absolute silence about the harassment, abuse and nonsense that I received from Mr. Bernabé Gutiérrez. Some of them being UNDER AGE. I proceed to make it public and invite my colleagues who were also his victims to raise their voices, "Villalobos revealed on his Twitter account.

Shortly after this incident, on September 22, 2020, Gutiérrez was sanctioned by the United States Department of the Treasury for collaborating with the government of Nicolás Maduro in the parliamentary elections of December 6, 2020 and "undermining democracy in Venezuela." ».

On February 22, 2021, the European Union sanctioned 19 officials linked to the Maduro regime. Among them was the name of Bernabé Gutiérrez for assuming command of the Ad Hoc board of directors of Acción Democrática, after the intervention of the TSJ.

On January 12, 2022, Gutiérrez declared that the Ad Hoc fraction would convene a National Steering Committee (CDN) to renew the board of directors of the white tent: "We are going to open the internal electoral process, we have said that the doors are open, We have talked about reconciliation, we have talked about zero hatred, zero rancor.

However, Dr. Carlos Canache Mata, a member of AD and former party general secretary, pointed out during an interview that the proposal lacked value: «Bernabé Gutiérrez and those who accompany him have not been members of Acción Democrática for many months. Therefore, what they declare and do in the name of AD is absolutely worthless. It doesn't matter. It is as if any passer-by, who went down any street in a city in Venezuela, said: I am going to convene a national steering committee of AD, with a view to later carrying out a reform of the statutes in a national convention. That has no value."

In any case, Bernabé Gutiérrez's ambitions seem to have changed, since he announced that he will be a candidate in the 2024 presidential elections during the act called "Walking towards 2024 with Bernabé", held in Caracas on July 15. In the same way, he requested to define the method to choose a presidential candidate that represents the opposition and affirmed that his party is willing to measure itself in primaries.
