Ballotpedia's analysis revealed that only 40 of the 100 seats up for election in 2016 involved competition between Democrats and Republicans. This made it numerically impossible for Democrats to take control of either Arkansas House of Representatives or Senate.

The reason for this competitive seats map for elections in 2016 was the redistricting process for their parties. Between 2012 and 2014, an upward trend in unopposed state legislative elections occurred.

The Democratic Party of Arkansas was able to field candidates in 75 of the 100 state House of Representatives District 15 primary ballot contests in 2016, which was the lowest number of candidates for the Democratic Party of Arkansas. Ballotpedia's analysis of the 2016 primary ballot contests showed that Democrats had a 25% chance of winning a primary election.

Ballotpedia's partner in political analysis Michael Ginsberg, who said that the party strategy for the 2016 elections was a possible factor as well, totaling 4 (8%) out 51 Democrats to recruit candidates early.

The primary election was held on March 15, 2016, and the general election was held on November 8, 2016. The deadline for filing petitions to run for office was December 1, 2015, and remained unchanged from 2014.

Incumbent Mike Holcomb defeated Dorothy Hunt in the Arkansas House of Representatives District 15 general election.

Scorecards

See also: State legislature scorecards and State legislative scorecards in Arkansas

A scorecard evaluates a legislator's voting record. Its purpose is to inform voters about the legislator's political positions. Because scorecards have varying purposes and methodologies, each report should be considered on its own merits. For example, an advocacy group's scorecard may assess a legislator's voting record on one issue while a state chamber of commerce's scorecard may assess a legislator's voting record on many issues.

Ballotpedia is in the process of determining an accurate header for all ballotpedia scorecards. Some states have a header that includes a variety of scorecards or scorecards produced only by select groups. It is Ballotpedia's goal to incorporate all scorecards into the appropriate state scorecard page.
