Whorton's website highlighted the following campaign themes: [2]

· EDUCATION:

GUN RIGHTS:

education at the top of my priority list, right alongside God and family. Unfortunately, Alabama consistently ranks among the lowest in high school graduation rates. With today's workplace being more technology-driven than ever before, we must encourage students to attain the necessary education and skills to find good jobs. This means not only reducing our high school dropout rate, but also increasing our state's college attendance and graduation rates. By increasing the number of educated and skilled work-ready individuals in Alabama, we will continue to attract quality jobs to our area, thus increasing our tax base, productivity, and quality of life for all Alabamians."

 "I always like to tell people that I would be happy if the government would get out of my way and let me go to work and raise my family as I see fit. I believe, just as our Founding Fathers did, that we all have unalienable rights and that life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness are among those rights. I believe that our federal, state, and local governments should exist only to secure these rights. I understand that reasonable government regulation is required, but I also believe that some of our elected officials have forgotten what the word "reasonable" means. We must approach any government regulation of the free market with common sense and we must seek solutions that interfere as little as possible with the operation of the marketplace."

"I firmly believe in the right to keep and bear arms. The right to keep and bear arms is an inherent individual right

LIMITED GOVERNMENT:

JOBS: "I believe that we, on both the state level and the federal level, need to be working toward increasing our tax base instead of simply raising tax rates. Creating jobs should be our top priority in Alabama. The more jobs we create, the larger our tax base becomes and the less likely our tax rates will increase. As our economy grows, our tax base broadens and our governments receive revenue based not on a higher tax rate, but based on more tax payers." TERM LIMITS: "I believe that our state and federal governments are set up to be run by citizen legislators. As such, I believe that term limits should be enacted to provide a limit on how long a legislator may serve his or her district, and I would vote to enact such legislation. Either way, if elected, I will pledge to serve no more than two terms as State

A scorecard evaluates a legislator's voting record. Its purpose is to inform voters about the legislator's political positions. Because scorecards have varying purposes and methodologies, each report should be considered on its own merits. For example, an advocacy group's scorecard may assess a legislator's voting record on one issue while a state newspaper's scorecard may evaluate the voting record in its entirety.
